

This is the main landing page after logging into a customer account.

The customer has three options: Upcoming Events, QR Codes, and User Information.

Upcoming Events: Will allow the customer to choose an event for which they would like to purchase parking.

QR Codes: Will allow the customer to access the QR codes and addresses for parking they have already purchased.

User Information: Will allow the customer to update or change their personal information, namely what car they are going to drive to the next event.

This is what the page will look like if the customer selects QR Codes from the main landing page.

As you can see, there are tabs available for all three options.

The Events for which they have purchased parking are listed in order by date.

The name and date of the event is listed first.

Next, the name of the Parking Lot and its address appear.

Finally the QR code for that parking spot is listed, being the largest to assist in ease of scannability for the Attendants.

Then the next Event for which parking has been purchased is listed.
